Los Angeles is one of the most beautiful places to live, but fire is, and always has been, a natural part of our landscape. Fire season is now year-round, requiring firefighters and residents to constantly be on heightened alert for the threat of wildfire. It's not a question of "if," but "when" the next major wildfire will occur and the most important person in protecting your life and property is you.

Attend this informational meeting conducted by the Los Angeles Fire Department and learn what you should do in case of an emergency.
